

CANDIDATES LINE UP AT POST AS CAMPAIGN STARTS

Aspirants for County Office Ignore Last Day for Quitting

"All Republican candidates for county office are lined up at the post and waiting for the gun," County Clerk Low A. Hendes said yesterday when inquiry was made regarding the rumors that at least one or possibly two candidates would withdraw from the field before midnight Monday, the deadline for candidates to quit the race.

Two sheriff candidates were reported in conference Monday but nothing came of it, so the five candidates are lined up for a fight to the finish. There are 32 days left before the primary on April 8, at which time Republican candidates for sheriff, county clerk, county judge, probate clerk, probate judge, treasurer and county superintendent of schools will be nominated.

Lake County Democrats will also nominate candidates for all the above county offices with the exception of probate judge.

EMMINENT DIVINE TO GIVE LECTURES AT ST. PETER'S CHURCH

Monsignor Dunne, Chicago, to Speak Here Every Thursday

Monsignor D. J. Dunne, D. D., pastor of Holy Cross church, Chicago, will speak every Thursday night during Lent, beginning March 13, at St. Peter's Catholic church, Antioch. This intellectual treat for the people of Antioch, both Catholic and non-Catholic, has been secured through the efforts of Father Frawley, a former associate of Monsignor Dunne. He extends a very cordial invitation not only to his own parishioners but to others not of his faith to attend these lectures.

Monsignor Dunne is noted for his depth of learning and broadness of mind. He has filled many of the high executive positions in the Archdiocese of Chicago. His subject matter during this series of lectures will cover the fundamentals of what the Catholic church believes in and practices. These Thursday night services will begin at 8:00 o'clock promptly every week.

Lake Villa Village Board Head Refutes Speed Trap Charge

"Lake Villa has not employed a traffic policeman for three years and is not responsible for any arrests made for violations of the motor vehicle law," said C. B. Dicks, president of the board of trustees, in his refutatory reply to a charge sent to the Chicago papers that Lake Villa is a speed trap.

"Any arrests or violations by motor traffic policemen on our highways are made either by state or Illinois patrolmen or Lake county patrolmen, and should not be held against Lake Villa," the president continued. His letter was printed in the "Voice of the Traffic" column in Monday's Chicago Tribune.

Former Antioch Resident Dies in California Home

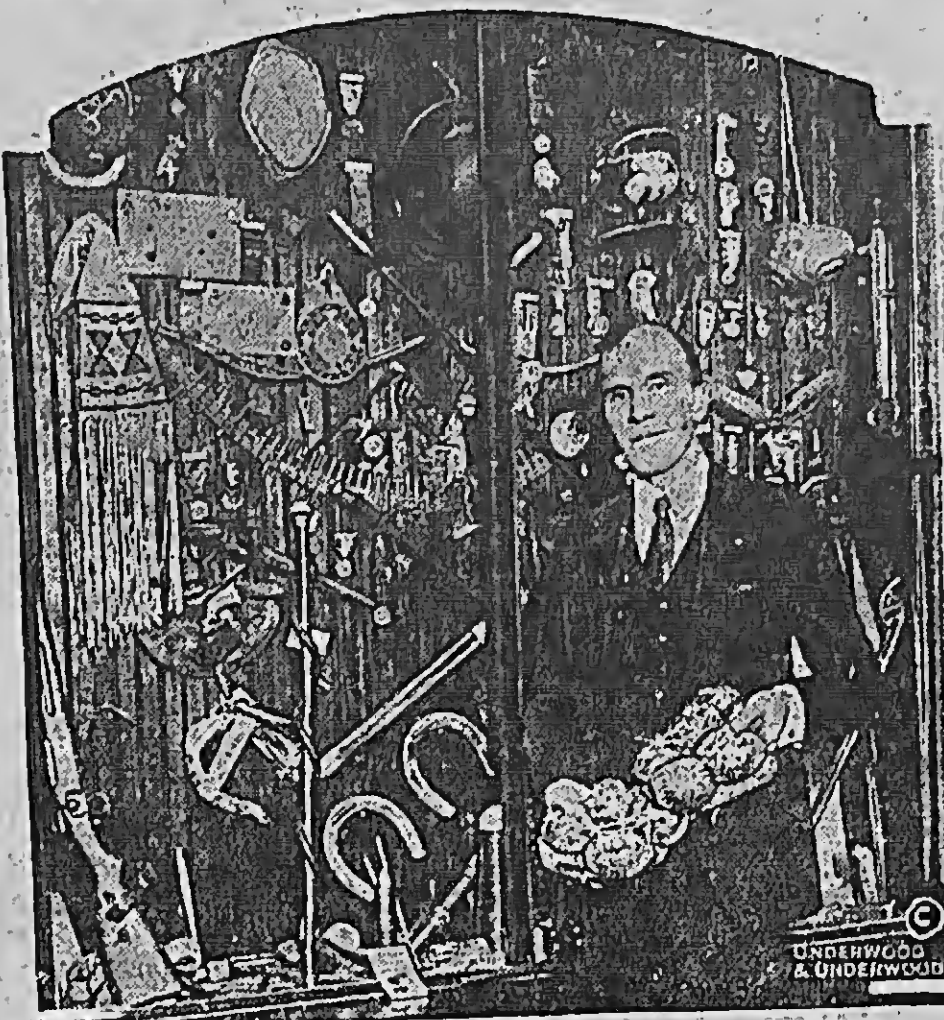

Word was received here yesterday that Mrs. Wm. F. Price, 69, a former resident of Antioch, died at her home in Glendale, Cal., Tuesday. She is survived by her husband, two sisters, Mrs. W. S. Rinear, Antioch, and Mrs. A. L. Wakefield, Chippewa Falls, Wis., and one brother, George F. Lewis, Antioch.

The deceased will be buried in California.

The local high school was host to over forty conference officials, faculty members, and coaches at a dinner held at the high school last night.

Miss Hedvig Rice spent the week end in the home of her sister at Shobyan.

Congressman Has a Real Museum

The only museum on Capitol Hill in Washington is found in the office of Representative Clyde Kelly of Pennsylvania, who has been collecting interesting curios from many parts of the world for over fifteen years. In it are found grim relics of the world war and odd objects from the South Sea Islands. A place of honor is accorded the tightly polished horse shoes with which Mr. Kelly won the championship of Capitol Hill last summer. The photograph shows Mr. Kelly holding his latest exhibit, a tortoise shell medicine rattle presented to him by the Ojibwa Winnebago Indians, of whom he is honorary chief.

Drama Presented by St. Peter's Dramatic Club Well Attended

Appreciative and enthusiastic crowds filled the local high school auditorium to capacity Sunday afternoon and Monday night to see the drama, "Step On It," which was presented by members of St. Peter's Dramatic club.

The cast, which was composed of several who have been identified with dramatic productions in the past, follows:

Mrs. Martha, Never sure of anything—Ellen Trusch; Willie Martin, A College Chap—Dudley Kennedy; James Martin, Editor, "Evening Star"—Alfred Wehnert; Alice Martin, Who is in love—Ruth McCorkle; Charles Brown, A hen-pecked husband—Jas. Dunn; Mrs. Brown, Sickly, but able to handle Charles—Patricia Kennedy; Frank Sterling, Young man of high ideals—George Wagner; John R. McBride, Owner of "Evening Star"—Walter Forbrick; Uncle Joshua, Mrs. Martin's brother—Charles Paddock; Howard B. Sterling, An aspiring politician—Pat Trump; Miss Doolittle, An old maid with a disposition—Mary Chase; Officer Langdon, Plain clothes officer—James Horan.

Those who saw this play are unanimous in asserting that all of the parts were noted in a masterly fashion. The staging was keen and the makeup excellent. The entire production was under the direction of C. K. Doyle, who was assisted by Mrs. Harriet Runyard.

Making a hit on the stage, members of the cast have been asked to present "Step On It" in Burlington.

MRS. McCORMICK WILL BE LUNCHEON GUEST HERE TOMORROW

Senatorial Aspirant to Start Lake County Campaign in Antioch

The Lake county campaign of Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, senatorial aspirant, officially opens in Antioch Friday when a luncheon will be served in her honor by the Ladies' Guild society at the Episcopal Guild hall at 12 o'clock.

At one o'clock she is to speak on world court, farm relief, and other campaign issues. The public is invited.

At 4 p. m., the candidate will attend a tea and meeting at the Y. W. C. A. hall in Highland Park. At 8 p. m. she will address a meeting to be held in the Waukegan Masonic Temple. Mrs. Claire C. Edwards and Attorney B. H. Miller, of Libertyville, are the chairmen making the arrangements for Mrs. McCormick.

It is not generally known that Mrs. McCormick has nine opponents, four Republican and five Democratic aspirants for the senatorial job. Her major Republican opponent is Charles S. Donegan, senior senator and former governor of Illinois.

THREE ARE CHARGED WITH SELLING 'STOCK' WITHOUT A PERMIT

Wisconsin Official Is Over-Zealous; Charge Is Error,
Counsel Declares

Failure on the part of a Wisconsin official to investigate the financing plan of the Chain-O-Lakes Laundry and Dry Cleaning company, resulted in difficulty for G. E. Orr, E. V. Miller and C. H. Washburn, who were held at Lake Geneva last Friday on a charge of violating the Wisconsin securities act through the sale of stock in that state without a permit.

Trouble for the men who are engaged by the promoter of the Antioch laundry followed the complaint of Miss Olga Stelg of the security division of the railway commission, who alleges that she made an investigation. She admitted, however, at the preliminary hearing that she had failed to make sure the men were actually selling "stock" in Wisconsin.

Laundry Is Co-Partnership
"No stock in the proposed Chain-O-Lakes Laundry has been sold in Wisconsin or elsewhere," Geo. E. Orr explained. "Thus far the project is merely a co-partnership, which plan makes every one who invests a partner with every other investor and Clarence D. Felth, attorney-in-fact. No stock can be sold until after the company is incorporated and there is a stock issue. Pre-organization work of this kind is lawful and the charges of our selling 'stock' in Wisconsin is without foundation in fact."

Wisconsin legal counsel, after making an investigation, have declared the charge against the men will not stand. The hearing has been set for March 17, at Elkhorn, Wis.

Work Not Interrupted
Meanwhile, the building committee, unperturbed by the attitude of Wisconsin authorities, are continuing with the completion of the laundry. Today three additional contracts are to be let, including painting and enameling, sewer, sub-concrete floor and the dry cleaning room. A water pump is to be purchased today or tomorrow and additional contracts for other work are to be let within the next few days.

Funds to pay for everything are deposited in a local bank in escrow. Upon the completion of the financing of the project the company will be incorporated under the laws of Illinois and shares of stock will be issued to all co-partners who have purchased an interest in the business on a pre-organization basis.

Rev. Frawley Returns From Southland

Rev. Daniel Frawley, pastor of St. Peter's church, returned Monday after several weeks vacation spent in Florida. He visited Daytona, Palm Beach and other points of interest in the southland. From a ringside seat Father Frawley saw the Sharky-Scott "fight" at Miami. He reports it as being the worst exhibition of manly art he ever witnessed.

Canada Senator

Mrs. Curline Mackay Wilson, wife of Norman F. Wilson of Ottawa, has become Canada's first woman senator following the ruling of the privy council last fall that women are "eligible persons." Mrs. Wilson, who is the mother of eight children, is a daughter of the late Senator Robert Mackay of Montreal. She is honorary president of the National Federation of Liberal Women of Canada, past president of the Ottawa Women's Canadian club, and founder of the Ottawa Women's Liberal association.

BOARD TO DECIDE SOON HOW TO SPEND GAS TAX FUND

Possibility of Bond Issue to Complete Road System Is Considered

$1,000,000.00 IS NEEDED

Even though Lake county has $123,352 from the gasoline tax to its credit in the state treasury, the road and bridge committee of the county board of supervisors does not intend to outline a definite program of expenditures until the matter can be taken before the March session of the county board, it was announced this week by R. M. Lobdell, county superintendent of highways.

Bond Issue Considered
Possibility of a bond issue to complete the secondary road system, which would place every home in the county not more than a mile and a half from a concrete road has been considered by the members of the board for almost a year. This project would be financed by funds secured from the gasoline tax.

The amount of money needed to complete such a program would not be less than $1,000,000 and not more than $1,250,000, according to the road superintendent.

Due to the fact that they believe it would not involve the payment of additional taxes, since the gas tax would cover both principal and interest, some of the members of the board have taken the stand that such a bond issue would carry.

The advantages of making the expenditures through a bond issue in the space of two or possibly three years at the most would allow larger contracts which would result in more miles of paving than ten or twenty small contracts that would result from the disbursing of gas tax money as it arrived, it was argued.

Tony Bassi, Fox Lake, Found Dead By Wife

Failing to rally from a heart attack, Tony Bassi, 47, a deputy state game warden for many years, died at his home in Fox Lake Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Bassi had gone to the basement to see what was detaining her husband and found him lying unconscious on the floor. Failing in her efforts to awaken him she hastily summoned a physician, who, upon his arrival, reported that the victim had apparently been dead about five minutes. Death is believed to have been due to heart disease. Mr. Bassi, who had lived in Fox Lake about fifteen years, was extremely popular, and news of his sudden death came as a distinct shock.

FIRST ROBINS IN CITY FORERUNNERS OF SPRING SEASON

"What a grand and glorious feeling" to get up in the morning in the early springtime and see a pair of robins perched on a tree top singing a duet after listening to wintry winds for several months! Such was the experience of several Antiochians who report seeing the early messengers of the south.

These advance agents of the robin family are perhaps in for some short rations before real spring weather prevails. What a pitiable plight those birds are placed in when a blizzard, accompanied by sleet and snow, covers the ground, as has been the case nearly every spring.

But the homing instinct in them is so strong they are willing to endure those hardships to be once again back home.

No doubt those that have been feeding birds during the winter will have a chance to wake up some morning and see a robin at their feeding station. Some of the robins and other birds who have braved the winter in this latitude had hard sledding and succumbed.

YOU CAN GET NEW AIR MAIL STAMPS IN ANTIOCH SOON

Have Been Placed on Sale
at Philatelic Agency, Washington, D. C.

Within the next month or two, the new five-cent air mail stamps, which were recently issued at the postoffice department in Washington, will make their initial appearance in Antioch, according to Miss Lottie Jones, local postmaster.

Printed in Purple

The new stamp is the same shape and size as the current 10, 15, and 20 cent air-mail stamps and is printed in purple. The central design is a reproduction of the insignia of an air mail pilot, a globe with extended wings on either side, with a background of rays of light.

Upon the globe are the words "U. S. Air Mail". In a horizontal panel across the top of the stamp are the words "United States Postage" in white Roman letters and at the bottom in an ornate panel is the word "Cents". The white numeral "5" appears within circles in both lower corners.

On Sale at Philatelic Agency
For the benefit of stamp collectors the stamp has been placed on sale at the philatelic agency, division of stamps, post office department, Washington, D. C. Stamp collectors desiring cancellations of the new five-cent air mail stamp may send a limited number of addressed envelopes, not to exceed 25, to the postmaster at Washington, D. C., with a remittance to cover the value of the stamps required for affixing to the covers.

The local demand for air mail stamps at the present time is not very great, according to Postmaster Jones, who will not make a requisition for new ones until the supply of those issued in 1928 has been more completely exhausted.

Dr. H. F. Beebe spent from Sunday until Tuesday in Odebolt, Iowa, on business.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bosomberg, Chicago, spent the week-end at the home of Mrs. D. A. Williams. Mr. Bosomberg, who is an attorney in the Windy City, has an interesting ancestry. His great grandfather, who was born in Bavaria, was taken with 5,000 Germans under King Otto's directorship to Greece shortly after that country had been freed from the Turks. He had been educated in Munich as a military man, and was taken to Greece to organize and teach schools. Mr. Bosomberg himself was born in Constantinople and spent his early life there.

JUDGE EDWARDS MAILS RESIGNATION TO GOV. EMMERSON

Will Leave Bench to Enter Law Practice

CIRCUIT JUDGE FOR 15 YEARS

When Governor Emmerson returns the first of next week from Miami, Florida, where he has been the guest of Charles McCulloch, he will find upon his desk at Springfield the resignation of Judge Clair C. Edwards of Waukegan, for the last fifteen years a circuit judge of the seventh judicial district. Judge Edwards announced his resignation to members of the Lake County Bar association at a luncheon held at the Karcher hotel Monday. While the resignation was set for March 5, Judge Edwards delayed in mailing it so that its arrival would be timed to the return of the governor.

Meanwhile he will hold the bench and probably will preside as late as next Monday.

Although he did not give any reason for resigning at this time, Judge Edwards has told many of his friends that the salary connected with the circuit judge is too low and he could make more money in his law practice. It is understood he will join Ralph Dady, former state's attorney of Lake county, and will continue to practice law as he did prior to being elevated to the bench.

The present term of Judge Edwards would not expire until June 1933. It is thought Governor Emmerson will call a special election to fill the vacancy.

Two Judges Left

The resignation of Judge Edwards leaves the entire district of Lake, McHenry, Boone and Winnebago counties to Judges E. D. Shurtliff and Arthur E. Fisher. With the constant increase in court work in these counties, especially in Lake and Winnebago, it has been mentioned several times of late of securing another circuit judge to help out instead of dropping one of the present three.

Successor Uncertain

The matter of settling on a successor for Judge Edwards has not reached the point of official discussion as far as the bar association goes.

Individuals have discussed possibilities several times but there is a decided feeling of uncertainty as to whom the next judge will be.

Rumors persist that Judge Edwards decided to leave the bench to accept. (Continued on page eight)

CHANNEL LAKE VOTERS ASKED TO APPROVE BONDS FOR SCHOOL

Special Election for New

Authorizing of a $10,000 bond issue to build a new schoolhouse in Channel lake district, No. 35, is asked of voters at a special election to be held Saturday, March 15. Bonds are to be of the $1,000 denomination and will become due in numerical order on July 1, of each of the years 1934 to 1943, both years inclusive. The proposed rate of interest is 5 per cent, payable semi-annually.

An affirmative vote on the proposal will authorize the board of directors to erect the new building on the present site now owned by the district and used for school purposes.

LOSES BET—AND HIS CAR

A certain gentleman bet his friends he could drop a lighted cigarette into the gasoline tank of his car and that the cigarette would simply be put out. His friends took him up and the test was made.

When he dropped the cigarette there was no heat—no light—he lost his bet and his car, too. All he gained were some painful burns, a lot of excitement and an entirely new knowledge of the properties of gasoline.

Perhaps the gentleman had read somewhere that liquid gasoline will not ignite—an exceedingly dangerous half-truth. You can't have gasoline in an open vessel without first having the deadly dangerous gasoline vapor. And the glowing butt must first pass through the vapor, which is ignited by the smallest of sparks.

This incident should be a warning to all that gasoline ignites easily. Great property damage results every year from accidents with petroleum and its products and from their misuse. Reports to The National Board of Underwriters for the year 1928 indicated a total fire loss from this cause of over $15,250,000.

You wouldn't play with dynamite. Give gasoline the same degree of respect!

THE VALUE OF THRIFT IN A COMMUNITY

Thrift is a preventative of that which is undesirable and a force which is an aid in the promotion of that which is desirable. Thrift creates a different outlook on life; it causes one to measure things by the standard of what is worthwhile.

The people who save a portion of their money demand more of themselves. They insist on getting more out of life. The better things appeal to them. The thrifty people of a community are its most substantial, dependable citizens. They are the people who maintain the higher standards that prevent the destruction of the very foundation on which civilization rests.

Moral delinquency is much greater among the people who have never learned to practice thrift than among those who have acquired the habit of exacting a toll from every dollar that comes into their hands and putting a portion of it aside.

The thrifty are subjected to fewer temptations than those who never save. A large percentage of juvenile delinquency is prompted by a determination to get the money, or its equivalent to gratify the desires of the passing moment. People often run into debt buying non-essentials and then become dishonest as a result of their extravagance. Court records reveal tragedies of life that could have been avoided had the victims only learned to save.

As one thinker said, "Extravagance, if not crime, very naturally leads to crime." The thrifty person who does not practice thrift is subjected to temptations that are stronger than he can resist in instances without end. Thriftlessness is followed by a development of desires impossible to gratify except by running into debt. Debt is a good thing if one has assumed the obligation for something worth while, but debt to satisfy an extravagant desire is sure to lead to disappointment. Those who spend all their money, using a part for non-essentials, acquire extravagant tastes that eventually cannot be satisfied from their own earnings. The next step is debt.

Unnecessary debt contracted when one is in good health and earning a good income is not apt to be the end of a difficulty. One thing leads to another and it seems that debt has the faculty of multiplying the same as money multiplies when it is placed on interest. Those who thoughtlessly assume obligations are just as thoughtless when it comes to getting obligations canceled.

These run on month after month and year after year without end. Promises to pay are not met. At first one may be sincere in his belief that a debt will be paid at a certain time, but the tendency that caused the liability to be created in the first place still prevails and instead of being able to meet the obligation as agreed upon another will probably be created in the meantime.

Many business concerns have adopted the policy of not employing anyone who habitually runs into debt when the practice of thrift would avoid the obligation. Debts are sometimes unavoidable and these firms recognize the fact but the unnecessary obligations to gratify passing whims and fancies are unexcusable.

THE WORTH OF A MAN

What is a man worth? Ask the employer of labor and he will tell you he is worth whatever profit he can earn above his wages. Ask the life insurance company and you will be told that he is worth as much money as it would take to bring in the same amount of interest at the going rate as the man is able to earn in a year. Ask the politician and he will tell you, if he speaks as he feels, that a man's worth, much or little, is in accordance with the number of votes he is able to control. But these answers are not satisfactory, because there must be a somewhat different standard by which the value of man is measured.

Ask a community what a citizen is worth and the estimate will be made in accordance with what he does for his community. Go to history to find an answer for your question and you will find that a Washington is worth more than can be estimated, while some might better have never been born.

What did the Creator think of the worth of man? The answer is in the creation itself. God made man the crown of creation. He created him with glory and majesty. He gave him possibilities that have not yet been fathomed. He did all this because he saw man at his true value. Man might have been made as one of the humble creatures of the earth, but God chose to make man the biggest element in the world with dominion over the entire wide realm and with power to conquer the things of nature.

Every man is a king, a king whose realm is the place of his activity and whose subject is himself. And man is worth most who first masters himself and who then finds his realm somewhere that permits him to make the world a better place in which to live.

"Do all young fellows swear these days?" a young boy asked me not long ago.

"I was entertained at dinner by a group of young men only a few nights ago," he went on. "They said grace at table, and then after the meal was over, they swore like pirates."

Well, does every one swear these days?

"Where did you learn to be so profane?" I asked a senior in college not long ago.

"Oh at home, I suppose," she replied. "Father swears, mother does, too. I guess I just picked it up."

And what a disgusting vulgar habit it is, for even a pirate!

IT ISN'T YOUR TOWN—IT'S YOU
If you want to live in the kind of a town

Like the kind of a town you like,
You needn't slip your clothes in a grip

And start on a long, long hike.

You'll only find what you left behind.
For there's nothing that's really new.
It's a knock at yourself when you knock your town.

Real towns are not made by men afraid

Least somebody else gets ahead.

When everyone works and nobody shirks,

You can raise a town from the dead.

And if you make your personal stake

Your neighbors can make one too;

Your town will be what you want to see.

It isn't the town—it's you.

MOST folks, when they decide to have a piece of printing done want it at once.
We are well equipped to give prompt service on your work.

Furthermore, it will not look like a hurry up job, since our ability to handle rush work enables us to give it the same careful attention that is given less hurried work.

That's Us

Local young men's fancies turned most every place this week except in the direction currently expected by poets and biologists.

A couple of weeks ago Antioch folks complained, "June in February is borrisome," and now they say, "A day of spring sandwiched in between winter would be a joy forever!"

Judging by the way he conducts himself in the "Garden of Eden", Old Man Weather might well be termed an ill-regulated jade.

Oh, well, on March 21, we'll get a surcease from it all.

Those who have the sleeping porch habit were rewarded during the "warm spell" for the occasional frosty nights when it wasn't exactly a hilarious sport to go out of a warm room into 10 or 20 below, shed a bathrobe and slippers, and hop into a bed that hadn't known heat since the sheets were in the laundry.

Monday morning was a good time to solve the age-old problem of how to get up in the morning and dress without getting out of bed.

Doesn't it make you chuckle up your sleeve when you go into a store and a baby face clerk approaches you in an air of hauteur nd dolce, farniente (I don't have to work if I don't want to) and says, "Something, ma'am?"

Antioch still possesses some of those ritzy appearing citizens who think they're obsessed with the importance of their lineage—too bad!

Big buddies in big buggies and little buddies in little buggies go sailing through here every day, but there is one buggy that attracts more attention than any of the rest—Vincent Dupre's house on wheels.

A leading newspaper publisher of Indiana said in a recent talk over the radio that the advertising in a newspaper is news, and also that the advertising columns constitute a thoroughly reliable index of the town's business. "Almost as a glance," he said,
"one may judge how progressive are its merchants. The size of their advertisements, the kind of merchandise offered and the price, the number of advertisers in proportion to the population, and the very wording of their announcements tell plainly how business is."

THE WORDS OF MY MOUTH

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

David was certainly temperamental, as most musicians are. He was impulsive and hot-headed as one may easily conclude from reading his history. Tradition says he had red hair, and this fact may account for some of his erratic acts. Shepherd boy or king, he knew his weaknesses, and his strength, and he realized the need of self control. "Let the words of my mouth . . . be acceptable," was his prayer. We can conceive then, that hot words, profane words, it may be, not infrequently rushed to his lips, but he knew that such expressions were unworthy of him, and he wanted to be right.

A young girl was walking past my office door not long ago, engaged in conversation with a boy of her own age. She was a very pretty girl, well dressed and carefully groomed, and her external appearance gave one the impression of her having come from a home of comfort if not of refinement.
She was talking about an exhortation which she had just taken in which, to use her own words, she had had a "hi-lo-fa-time." There were other descriptive phrases couched in words which are best not written down—profane words, but not spoken with any heat but rather coolly as if such expressions were the regular part of ordinary conversation, as I suspect no doubt they were with her.

"She must have had a very crude illiterate background," you say.
But you're quite mistaken. She hails from one of the most erudite centers of the state; she is a member of one of the "best families" of a rich Chicago suburb; her parents are both educated, and her own secondary school preparation was in one of the highest grade schools for girls in the country. She thinks that one could hardly be quite up to date if one did not swear. It is an indication of freedom from the shackles of convention, of independent thought, of fuller self expression, if one emphasizes one's statements with an oath. Other girls are doing it—prominent ones, too—and she is herself a campus leader.

She is president of something or other;
she must set a forceful example. She does not realize how cheap and common and vulgar she is, what a low estimate she puts upon her own character—an estimate, which those who know her only casually are sure to

Some Hints On How To Cook For Two

Perhaps you are cooking for "just two" and the amount to cook puzzles you. You bake a cake and it is so large that it seems to last forever and half of it is wasted. The rule for muffins made so many that you think you have enough for the winter at least. The pudding didn't sound big but there's enough for a regiment.

One essential for cooking in small amounts is small cooking utensils. The frying pan should be small. It's a waste of heat and fat to use big spiders. You can't make a cupful of sauce in a two-quart pan and have the sauce as perfect as you would wish.

It is impossible to cook roasts of meat for only two persons. The roast must be cut so small that there is nothing to cook. A leg of lamb or a fresh ham roast is out of the question. Pork roast cut from the ribs is satisfactory as the roast may be cut any size required and roasted so many minutes to the pound. Instead of a leg of lamb try a piece of the shoulder.

To make a dessert small enough for two persons is quite a problem. Few desserts are good the second day and most are unfit to use.

Choose small pudding dishes and pie pans. Include a small do-over heater with small earthen bowl for boiling egg yolks in your kitchen equipment. This heater and bowl will be indispensable for desserts of all kinds and very convenient for persons with normal appetites. This salad dressings.

Most rules are planned to serve six menus that for two persons the recipe must be cut down two-thirds. All the ingredients must be cut down in the same proportion.

For example, an omelet rule calls for four eggs, four tablespoons milk, salt and pepper and one tablespoon butter, and is calculated to serve four. For two persons divide each amount by two, using two eggs, two tablespoons milk, a little salt and pepper and one-half tablespoon butter.

Another example more difficult to work out is in the case of a recipe using five, seven or eight eggs. Use one whole egg and the yoke if five are required. In the original rule. Two eggs and one yoke in the case of seven, and three eggs for eight. If one cup of flour is required, reduce it to one-third cup. One tablespoon of anything is reduced to one teaspoon. In working over a recipe, teaspoons can always be substituted for tablespoons as three teaspoons make one tablespoon.

Reduce and measure accurately and the results will be satisfactory. Here are some recipes which were planned for "just two":

White Muffins For Two
Cream two tablespoons butter and one tablespoon sugar. Add one egg well beaten. Mix and sift in one and one-half cups of flour, three teaspoons baking powder, and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Add alternately with one-half cup milk to first mixture. Beat well and pour into buttered and floured gem pans. Bake twenty-five minutes in a hot oven.

Graham Gems For Two
Mix and sift one-half cup white flour, one dessertspoon sugar, three teaspoons baking powder, and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Mix with one cup graham flour. Add gradually one cup milk and one dessertspoon butter (melted). Beat well and pour into hot buttered gem pans. Bake in a hot oven twenty-five minutes.

Popovers For Two
Small iron muffin rings are best for popovers, although earthen custard cups may be used. Heat muffin rings very hot and butter well. Put one-half cup flour, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-half cup water, one teaspoon butter and one egg into a mixing bowl and beat with a strong do-over heater until very smooth and full of bubbles.

Turn into the rings, which must be hissing hot, and bake half an hour in a hot oven. Serve at once.

Griddle Cakes For Two
Put one cup sour milk into a mixing bowl. Stir in one-half teaspoon soda. Add one egg well beaten. Add one-half teaspoon salt and two tablespoons corn meal and sift in one-half cup flour. Mix well and add more flour slowly until the batter is about as thick as heavy cream and very smooth. Add one teaspoon baking powder with the last flour put into the batter. Bake on a hot well-greased griddle.

Sally Ann's Adventures —at her home

Net Sally Ann does something that none of the rest of you boys and girls ever think of doing. What do you think it is? You never could guess in the wide, wide world. Well she always feeds the little fairies who come and see her. Did you ever have any little fairies come, and see you? Maybe you would if you would give them good things to eat like Sally Ann does.

Each night after supper she wraps up some food in wax paper and puts it out on the porch for the little fairies to eat, and then every morning she goes out to see if it is gone and sure enough the fairies always get it.

The night before last Sally Ann had the nicest dream. What do you think it was, boys and girls? Well, a little fairy, whose name was Pip, came to see her and told her that she was going to take her to Dreamland the next night and of course Sally Ann was delighted pink. So when she woke up she called her mamma to her bedside and told her all about the dream, but her mamma, of course, didn't pay any attention to it, because she was pretty sure it would never come true. Sally Ann, however, just couldn't get over it all day and when her little girl friends came over she told them all about what made her so happy and they were just as delighted as she was.

Sally Ann could hardly wait until night when she would find out for sure if the fairies were just fooling her. So after she had finished supper she wrapped up an extra lot of food and put it on the porch for her little friends. Then she told her mamma that she was tired and wanted to go to bed and so her mamma took her up stairs and before long Sally Ann was tucked in bed tight and cozy with her little doll by her side. At first it seemed terribly hard for her to get to sleep, because she just couldn't stop thinking about the wonderful trip she was going to have. The clock down stairs struck eight, nine, and ten, and still Sally Ann lay there in her little bed wide awake.

As soon as they had finished eating, the fairies decided that it was time to take all the little girls to their homes, because their mamma's weren't in their little beds in the morning. So the fairies picked up their little guests and flew away with them through the dark blue sky. Down, down, they went and before long they were again on earth, and Sally Ann and Peggy were safe in their little beds.

To the

Lake County Milk Producers

all of whom are tax payers and vitally interested in preserving order, life and property:

One of my competitors for the office of Sheriff, said to me a few days ago: "You won't get the milk producers' support."

I asked him "Why?"

"Because," he replied, "you were on the job at the time of the milk strike some six years ago, and they are against you."

I told him that which I now tell you:

"The sheriff has certain duties to perform and promptly, too, when the call comes. He either answers that call instantly and preserves order, life and property, or he is a real law breaker,—a dangerous official.

What about that milk strike?

I knew how the Chicago milk dealers had stocked up for the occasion and purposely caused the lockout. I knew they were "bootlegging" milk from Iowa, Minnesota and upper Wisconsin. I knew they thought they could bust the Association, then trying so hard to save the situation for the producers. I was in full sympathy with the milk producers then. I am in full sympathy now.

No "side-stepping" here.

I was called as the one officer of the law to protect life and property. I went. No guns,—no display of authority. It wasn't needed.

If elected Sheriff and called upon again, under the same circumstances, I will do as I did before.

Any candidate for the office who will tell you he would not do the same as I did is not the man for Sheriff; he will have you believe he will not play the job on the square, and says, in fact, that you would not have him do so.

I want to be elected Sheriff,—but not under false, misleading statements.

As good citizens think all this over, and if you conclude I did wrong in doing my duty,—vote for one of the other five candidates.

I pledge myself if elected Sheriff of Lake County, to justify the honor by fidelity, efficiency and economy in the office.

Sincerely yours,

This is the telephone's mission

IN THIS COUNTRY, a new type of civilization is being reared—a civilization of better opportunity for the average man, comfort and convenience, business enterprise and higher standards that enrich the daily life of all the people.

To build for this new age, the Bell System in 1929 expended more than 550 million dollars. These millions were used to add new plant and further improve service.

This American development of instantaneous communication, of fast, far-reaching speech, belongs not to the few, but to the many. It is the aim of the Bell System to permit each personality to express itself without regard to distance. This is part of the telephone ideal that anyone, anywhere, shall be able to talk quickly and at reasonable cost with anyone, anywhere else. There is no standing still in the Bell System.

IN MEMORIAM FOR

MRS. C. A. CLARK
One year has passed, Mother Dear, since you left us for your heavenly home above. We have sadly missed you and there has been a vacant place, but a beautiful and happy peace and rest for you evermore. We know you loved your home and your children, but you had reached the end of your journey through life. You had fought a good fight; you had finished your course; so therefore there is laid up a crown of righteousness for you. We loved you through all the eighty-five years you spent with us. God knows you were a patient sufferer, through all. We all shall meet you in the sweet bye and bye; it may be soon and it may be later; we know not when, but we do know you are peacefully resting in the arms of your Savior. A mother's care and a mother's love is everywhere. We are so thankful to Rev. Pollock for the beautiful sermon he gave you and to those gifts of beautiful flowers. God grant we may meet you in the beautiful heaven you have chosen for us; there is no home like an eternal home. Sometimes we don't realize the love and care we should give a mother until it is too late, too late. Your home looks so lonely without you. What is home without a mother? You have a happier one now than ever before. Let us all try to give mother peace, rest, and happiness as the morning she passed on to the great beyond. May God help us to do so. We know he will if we will only try; so let us hear these few words in mind for her rest and comfort. Mother dear, peacefully rest in the sweet bye and bye. God bless you and be with you forevermore. One of the children who has never forgotten you.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Christ Jesus" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, March 2.

The Golden Text was, "Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God; and every one that loveth him that begat loveth him also that is begotten of him" (1 John 5:1).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord" (Luke 2:8, 10, 11).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Jesus was the highest human concept of the perfect man. He was inseparable from Christ, the Messiah—the divine idea of God outside the flesh. . . . Angels announced to the Wisemen of old this dual appearing, and angels whisper it, through faith, to the hungering heart in every age" (p. 482).

KANSAS PAPER TELLS ABOUT LEE KARR, WHO SPENT BOYHOOD HERE

Father Was Physician in Antioch Several Years Ago

In a recent issue of a Wichita, Kansas, daily there appeared a special feature article which contains much local interest since the person about whom it was written, Charles Lee Karr, spent the early part of his life in Antioch, his father being a physician here several years ago. "Lee", as he is familiarly called by those who remember him, was born here 39 years ago, attended the grade school, and between times roamed hill and dale with his father on hunting and fishing expeditions. His family later moved to Iowa, Kansas, where he began his high school career, finishing it at Chetek, Wisconsin, up in the North woods, where he learned a great deal about outdoor life. Later he attended the University of Illinois and was graduated from the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor.

Following the completion of his college course, he was employed in the engineering department of Henry Ford's plant at Detroit, but was later transferred to the Detroit Edison company.

In 1912 he married Evelyn Howlin, of Iowa. They returned to Detroit,

CHANNEL LAKE COUNTRY CLUB NEWS

What Members of Popular Organization Are Doing

The members of the Channel Lake Country club may feel justly proud of one of their younger representatives who has been winning honors in the game of golf. Henry Haefner, Jr., who qualified in the Pan American Golf tournament, but lost to Chick Evans, came back and won the consolation tournament prize, bettering a formidable foe as Don Armstrong. During their "Hell Week", the Kappa Sigma's of the University of Chicago sent one of their neophytes out to Lake Marie on his quest where he had to map "Merry wood Grove". The boy left Chicago at midnight on the train and got back to Chicago the next morning at eleven o'clock by hitch-hiking. He brought the map, too. Another of our boys, Robert Tankersley, was an usher at the Chicago Civic Opera during the winter season, and came to know many of the great operatic stars. One of these stars, after hearing Bob's voice, predicted that he, too, would some day be an opera star.

Mrs. Chalmor Taylor of Blooming-ton, with her small son, has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Tankersley.

where in 1914 a son was born to them.

At the present time Lee is superintendent of power for the Kansas Gas and Electric company at Wichita. When not hunting, fishing, chasing the elusive golf ball, playing bridge, poker, or what have you, he drives a beautiful La Salle roadster or attends the Kiwanis club, Blue Lodge, Chapter, Commandery, Consistory, Shrine, Crestview Country club, Elks, or some engineering society.

"Nothing but a smile crosses his countenance," says the Kansas paper, "because early in life he was taught it took 64 muscles to make a frown and only 13 to make a smile." Addendum: Scotch ancestry would probably account for the economy.

Emphasizing the intensity of the local interest which centers about this man, it was learned this morning that Mrs. R. D. Williams has a sister in Wichita who not infrequently meets Mrs. Karr at musical circles, both women being prominent musicians in the western city.

The average pedestrian these days is much like the worm, the boy, and the apple. Eating an apple the boy was cautioned to look out for the worm. The boy remarked, "When I eat an apple the worms have to look out for themselves." So it is with many car drivers, when they get behind the wheel the pedestrian has to look out for himself.

"KONJOLA DID FOR ME WHAT IT DID FOR OTHERS"

Grateful Man Praises New Medicine That Ended Two-Year Period of Stomach Misery

MR. HENRY AUGUSTINE

"Konjola is a wonderful medicine; it gave me new and glorious health," said Mr. Henry Augustine, 1008 North Twelfth street, Springfield. "My stomach had been in a disordered condition for two years. After every meal gas formed, causing pain in my stomach and chest. Often I had a burning sensation in my throat. I was going down hill in health and getting weaker all the time. "But all that is ended now and I owe all my glorious health to Konjola. Almost immediately this medicine benefited me. I began to gain weight and strength which never degenerated before. Soon my stomach had been cleansed and invigorated, and now there isn't a trace of indigestion. I eat whatever I wish without suffering the least bit. Konjola surely deserves all the praise it received." Konjola is sold in Antioch, Ill., at S. H. Reeves' drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Antioch, Libertyville Tied for Northwest Conference Title

SEQUOITS ARE WINNERS FOR FOURTH TIME

Local Cagers Strong Contenders For Dist. Honors

Continuing their upsetting tactics, members of the Antioch crack team "went places and did things" last Friday night, when they tossed out the Leyden outfit by a 27-14 count, thereby becoming eligible to share the much-sought-after Northwest title with Libertyville. This makes the fifth time the local cagers have topped the top-run honors of the conference. Davenport was shoved out of the race when it lost to Palatine by one point.

Even though it was the windup game of the season, there was nothing exciting about it and at no time during the entire play did Coach Watson's basket tossers threaten the Sequoits' lead. In fact the score at the end of the third quarter was 25-7.

Added Attractions Featured

As an added attraction several special features were put on between halves. A group of grade school girls cheered, Leyden was burned at the stake and war dances and basketball contests for the mothers and fathers were featured. Mrs. Mastno being able to throw the ball the greatest distance and Mr. Ullman being the only father present who could dribble the ball the length of the floor. Throughout the evening the cheering was led by two primary pupils, Lucile Waters and Bobby Hawkins.

All Set For Tourney

Jubilant over their victory the Sequoits are all set for the district tournament, which is being held in Waukegan today, tomorrow, and Saturday. Tonight the locals are scheduled to play Waukegan at 7:30 and their second game will be fought with Palatine Friday night at 7:30. If they win this game chances are potent they will have the opportunity to battle with a class A team, New Trier, at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The losers of the afternoon tilt play Saturday night at 7:30 and the winners at 8:30. Waukegan and New Trier are hoped to play the championship game.

GOLDEN GLOVES WINNERS ON PALACE BOXING CARD FRIDAY

Billy Bennett Battles Harris in Windup; Maleck to Make Ring Debut.

The appearance of two amateur boxers who have attained the coveted prominence of winning in the Chicago Tribune's Golden Glove tournament, and the matching for the first time a local lad of promise, have the Lake county boxing fans in a state of high expectancy over the prospect of a bright and sparkling show at Dick Maleck's Antioch Palace tomorrow night.

Billy Bennett, golden glove winner in the 147 pound class, is matched with Paul Harris, Grayslake mlt artist, in the windup bout. Another golden glove performer who went right up to the finals in the tournament, is Charles Hughes, who is matched with Charles Oliva in the fourth preliminary.

Antioch Boy on Card
George Maleck, Antioch, who is said to carry dynamite in either glove, will make his ring debut Friday night, appearing against Jack (Curley) Tyko of the Loftus Athletic club. George has disposed of some of the heavy hopefuls around Antioch, and those who have seen him work have persuaded him to engage in a regular bout. Anything might happen with George going good, and it's a cinch he will show Curley a lot of gloves tomorrow night.

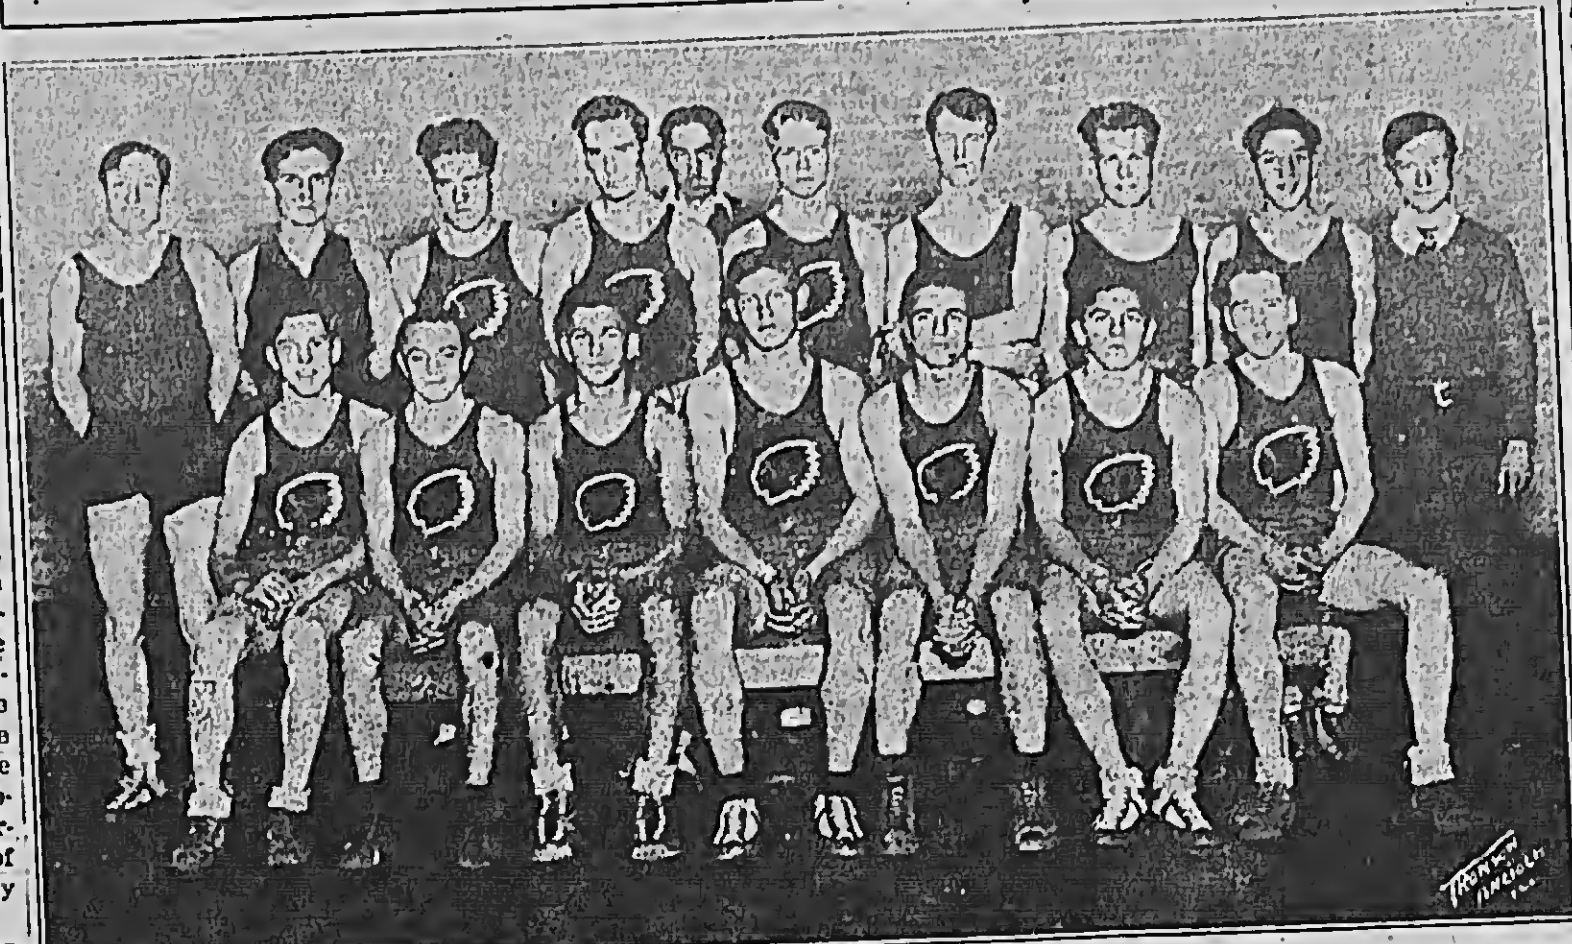

The featherweight bout between Frank Reding, Evanston, and Joe Kratochvil, Racine, promises a lot of fast action and good boxing. This will be the first preliminary.

Buddy Moore, Belle Plaine A. C., and Jack Lazar, Loftus, are billed for the third bout at 130 pounds, and Jimmy Hyman, Belle Plaine, and Joe Pitts, Evanston, are on for the fifth preliminary.

Principals in the semi-windup are Buddy Boyers, Twin Lakes, and David Lichter, Congress Arcado.

Surprises came thick and fast at the Antioch Palace boxing show last Friday night when four knockouts were chalked up for the edification of some 600 cash customers. Two of the kayos were of the technical variety.

It took Johnny Hughes, Kenosha, just 50 seconds to locate Danalle Adams' chin and snap a left hook that sent the Chicago man to the mat for the count. The pair were slow in starting and it was in the mix up following the referees admonition to get going that brought Adams to grief. Paul Harris, Grayslake, administered the second kayo of the evening on the person of George Eichorn, Racine, after a round and a half of milline. This started out like a real fight and it was right up to the finish. A left cross did the damage and earned the verdict for Harris.

Falls to Answer Bell

Harry Peetzke, Antioch heavy, lost on a technical knockout, when he failed to answer the bell for the third round in his bout with George Nelson, also of Antioch. Peetzke got a worm's-eye view of the ring five times in the two rounds, taking a count of nine four times, and the bell saving him at the count of four at the end of the first round. Harry did most damage to his opponent just at the start of the battle when he bowled Nelson over for a nine count

WILMOT PIRATES PLAY AT CHICAGO STADIUM WEDNESDAY EVENING

Wisconsin Cagers Win Recognition; Will Play Star Team

Recognition for the Wilmot Pirates, crack basketball team from the Wisconsin village, came a few days ago in the form of an invitation to meet the South Wilmington, (Ill.) Coal Miners at the Chicago stadium next Wednesday night.

after 20 seconds of fighting in the first round.

Haines Wins

Frank Haines, Racine, was awarded a technical kayo victory over Melvin Brenton, Burlington, when the latter's seconds would not allow him to come up for the third round on account of an injured left hand.

Howard Craft won over Jimmy Raymond in four rounds.

Bob Brown, Libertyville, won all three rounds from Vince Mackartlis, Racine.

One of the best bouts of the show was the windup when Ernie Kratochvil, Racine, was declared winner over Tony Mascartillo, Chicago. Tony sank to the floor in the third round for a seven-second rest, protesting that Ernie's thumb or elbow had struck him in the eye.

It is believed the pair will be rematched.

Claire Bennett, Evanston, was the referee in the absence of Jabber Young, who was officiating at the Tribune tournament in Chicago.

day night. On the same program the Chicago Bruins are matched with Brooklyn Vintations. All four of the teams are rated as being among the cream of independent teams, and are billed to make one grand entertainment for followers of the indoor game Wednesday night.

Manager Rella Hegeman regards the invitation as no honor, and is going to have his men on edge to cop the long end of the scoring against the Minors. A well played game, even in case of defeat, will prove to the stadium crowd that they have made no mistake in placing the Pirates on the card.

The Pirates' record for the season thus far is twenty-three victories against only six defeats.

4-H Club Members Meet and Elect Officers in Gymnasium

Playing by far the best game of the second semester, Wilmot High easily defeated their ancient rival, Genoa City, 25-10. The Wilmot Five played smooth, consistent basketball throughout the entire game, with no outstanding star. Hansen was high scorer with five field goals and a free throw. Oettinger gathered two field goals and three gift tosses, while Bornholt, Lake, and Schmalfeldt each contributed one basket. The last home game of the season will be played on Tuesday, March 11. Waterford, who defeated Wilmot earlier in the season, will furnish the opposition. The rapid improvement of the Wilmot team gives them an even chance to win the final games.

4-H club work for 1930 got its start Saturday night at the Wilmot gym. Approximately one hundred members from all over the county gathered to elect officers and receive announcements regarding this year's work. Frederick Gilmore, Bristol, was elected county president; Dalton O'Zanne, Somers, vice-president; and Claudia Vincent, Twin Lakes, secretary and treasurer. After the business meeting, games were played under the direction of Winifred DeBell and Hazel Scholl.

Imagine a headlong horse with a noisy reporter, a scoundrelous splinter with a deaf father, and poor Mrs. Blair, the widow. These parts are being played by Wm. Moske, the reporter; Mrs. A. G. Braemer, the splinter; John Sutcliffe, the father; and Mrs. Guy Loftus, the widow in the "Third Floor Flat" to be presented by the Wilmot P. T. A. soon.

The Pirates defeated Genoa City basketball team Friday evening 46-15 on the home floor. Sunday the Pirate Reserves defeated the Coco Cola Bottling Team 28-19. The Pirates defeated Somers 46-12. Tuesday evening, March 4, the Pirates traveled to Racine to the Tri-County tournament where they met the Jerome Parks from Racine.

Mrs. Frank Burroughs entertained at a vaudeville tea for a number of friends last Thursday afternoon. Mrs. John Raush entertained at Luncheon last Tuesday afternoon in honor of the birthday anniversary of her mother, Grandma Fretott, of Trevor. Refreshments were served following the games.

The first orations and declamations were given before the assembly on Monday. The best eight will be chosen and will compete in the semifinals. Four of each will then be chosen to meet in the finals on April 11th. Oratorical work is something new in the Wilmot High school and it is hoped the public will greet it with as much enthusiasm as the students have. Remember to hear the best orators in the school on April 11th.

The fourth and last of the card parties sponsored by the P. T. A. will be held at the Wilmot gym on Thursday evening, March 14th. Bridge, 500, Euchre, and Bunco will be offered. Dancing will follow the serving of refreshments.

Camp Fire Girls Reduce Age Of Admission From 11 to 10

New York.—The Camp Fire Girls, a national organization of over 210,000 members, announced today through its president, Miss Florence Hughes, that the age of admission to the organization has been reduced from 11 to 10 years. This will make eligible to Camp Fire Girls many members of the Blue Birds, its junior organization.

"Reduction of the age of admission from 11 to 10 years has been made by the Camp Fire Girls because the average 10-year-old girl of today is actually more developed, mentally, than the 11-year-old of only a few years ago," said Miss Hughes. "The growth and popularity of the junior high school idea is strong evidence of the shift downward in the age of adolescence. Of course, fundamentally, the change is probably the result of the intensity of modern mental and physical training."

"There has been no element of forcing behind this change. It comes primarily because of the nationwide demand of the ten-year-old girls in the Blue Birds, our junior group, for the more highly individual activities which the older Camp Fire Girls have enjoyed. The fundamental purpose of the Camp Fire Girls is to develop a creative individualism combined with the highest standards of moral, mental and physical health. In accord with this principle, the girl admitted to Camp Fire first chooses a name and symbol expressive of her ideals and ambitions. Artistically, the Camp Fire Girl is encouraged to be more and more herself. The strong and beautiful symbolism of the various Indian tribes offers an unexcelled medium for this purpose. It is so simple that it may be used with ease by the girl of ten, yet it permits of combinations and complex files of design numerous and beautiful enough to satisfy a mature artist of genius.

"In more practical work the young Camp Fire Girl is taught to assume responsibility, however heavy, immediately and without flinching. Thus, some years ago, when a Western village was inundated by floods, the Camp Fire Girls from surrounding towns marched at once to the scene and organized and took charge of the relief work."

"The reduction in the age of admission is supported, generally, by psychologists and psychiatrists throughout the country."

ANTIOCH POST No. 748

Legion Auxiliary
News

Monty Rasmussen of Lake Forest, Lake county child welfare officer of the eighth district, American Legion, has received the following report from Lester R. Denston, department service officer, regarding the work of his office in aid to veterans:

Since the first of the fiscal year of the American Legion, which starts October 10, 1929, the service department, located at 150 North LaSalle street, Chicago, has secured a total of $157,331.91 for veterans and their dependents.

For the veteran, this represents awards of compensation; increase in compensation; benefits under the Officers' Retirement Act; State Bonus claims; and pensions and apportionments of compensation in the amount of $52,372.88.

For the families of deceased veterans, this represents War Risk Insurance awards; Adjusted Compensation awards; accrued compensation due the estates of soldiers, and reimbursements on funeral expenses. Awards to widows and dependent parents was in the amount of $101,958.06.

The figures also show that this total represents 211 such claims actually handled through the service department.

"IN SCHOOL DAYS"

Grade School High School

By virtue of the fact that who wrote the second best typing test ever written at the local high school, Miss Elsie Dunford, Channah lake, will be awarded a gold pin sometime this month. She wrote for a period of fifteen minutes at the rate of fifty-five words per minute with only two errors. The test was taken on an Underwood typewriter.

An unusual entertainment is in store for local people on April 4, when over a hundred Antioch Grade school pupils will present the operetta, "Uncle Sam's Visit" at the high school. There will be singing and dancing a plenty and the members of the cast will all be dressed in costumes with every nation being represented. The faculty committee in charge of this musical play is Mrs. Lax and the Misses Tonton, Meyer, and Warner.

NEW CORN COMBINE TO BE ON MARKET EARLY THIS SUMMER

Invention Is Expected To Revolutionize Corn Industry

A corn combine that will cut the standing corn stalks, husks, shell, clean and bin the corn in the field at one operation was recently announced by Mr. S. H. Hale, President of Glenner Combine Harvester Corporation, Independence, Missouri, according to a news item appearing in the Kansas City Star. The new corn combine is built along the lines of the wheat combine, the machine that has been such a factor in revolutionizing the wheat industry, according to the announcement. Mr. Hale did not go into details as to the construction of the new combine other than to say that his company had been conducting experiments on this device for a number of years and that he expects to have the new corn combine on the market this summer. He also said that this machine, by eliminating hand labor and speeding up production, would effect a saving of as much as eleven cents a bushel over other methods of gathering corn. The new machine, it is understood, is similar to the Glenner Baldwin Combine manufactured by Mr. Hale's company which has been on the market for years. While there has been a mechanical corn picker on the market for several years, which has proved satisfactory, this is the first machine that will actually "combine" the standing corn and there is much speculation of the getting action on cases pending in court.

Mention Several Candidates

Several attorneys were mentioned as possible successors, Attorney Benjamin H. Miller, of Libertyville; Attorney E. M. Runyard, Attorney Geo. W. Field, Attorney Alex F. Beaubien and Attorney Max Przyborski were the names heard frequently in discussing a successor to the man who held the bench for fifteen and a half years.

Miller, Beaubien and Przyborski are said to have little ambition to attain the post. Runyard said he hadn't given the matter a thought.

effect it will have on corn growing. There is one thing certain and that is, if this machine is as successful in the corn fields as other combines have been in the wheat fields, the corn growing industry is due for a revolution and farmers will undoubtedly welcome the change, as there isn't a farm job that requires more hard hand labor or takes any more of the farmers' time than corn harvesting.

NEW AGRICULTURAL INDUSTRY MAY BE DEVELOPED HERE

Kuttl Makes Investigation Into Squash Raising Possibilities

BAKERIES SEEK CONTRACTS

Prompted by a desire to secure facts which he hopes can be used in the development of a profitable enterprise, C. L. Kuttl, of the Department of Vocational Agriculture at the Antioch Township High school, has been spending considerable time the past month making investigation into the possibilities of growing pie squash for the bakeries of Chicago.

Confers With University Authorities
 After corresponding with university authorities at Urbana, Ill., and Madison, Wis., and obtaining facts from canine companies, the local agriculturist has assembled data which promises to be useful in the development of a lucrative business. Emphasizing the magnitude of this project should it be furthered, one bakery in Chicago has already promised to take 80 tons of Boston Marrow squash this season and arrangements are now being made to reach a satisfactory contract agreement.

Since this is only an infant industry it will, for a few years, at least, be confined under the close supervision of the local high school and the growing of the tonnage will be sponsored by the members of the Antioch chapter of the Future Farmers of America, with Mr. Kuttl as field man and advisor.

There will be perhaps at least six carloads of squash shipped from Antioch next fall, according to present indications.

"Tip Top Toby" Is Coming To Crystal Tuesday Evening

"Tip Top Toby," with Billy, the comedian, in the title role, will be the next presentation of the Rotnour Players at the Crystal theatre Tuesday night.

"It's a play of thrills, pathos and unlimited comedy," Mr. Rotnour says. Tip Top Toby leaves home with a pocket full of money, a poor education, but with a mind of his own that he knows where and when to use.

New actors and now vaudeville will be featured Tuesday night. Harry Rousseau, the Frenchman, Mr. Rotnour's old leading man, returns to the footlights after several months illness. The team of Miss Itoha Skeke and Jack Conley have been especially engaged to entertain between acts as well as to appear in important roles.

Mr. Rotnour says, "Go early next Tuesday night, and go prepared to laugh."

NOTICE

"Step On It" was a huge success, but this success was not due altogether to the cast and directors; it was the enthusiastic audience, together with the keen staging and excellent makeup. Director C. K. Doyle requested Father Frawley to thank the audience for their wonderful support, but instead Father Frawley asked those present to give the cast a big hand for the evening of splendid entertainment, to which they responded. We appreciate the large attendance at both presentations.

Thrift and Saving

THRIFTY people are HAPPY and PROSPEROUS people. A THRIFTY COMMUNITY is a HAPPY and PROSPEROUS COMMUNITY. It should, therefore, be our aim as a community to cultivate the habit of THRIFT and SAVING.

Thrifty persons are those who know HOW TO SPEND as well as ACCUMULATE. Spending wisely is really saving. The real keynote of thrift is EMPLOYING EFFICIENTLY THE MONEY YOU SPEND; and knowing what you don't want. One of life's hardest tasks is to spend money judiciously after having earned it. Thrifty people apply sane economies to their daily expenditure.

There is the economy of cleanliness, by using the facilities of the local laundry, or equipping the home with modern devices. Economy in fuel by providing for Winter needs at Summer prices. There is economy in food, by purchasing in quantities from your local dealers and by providing proper refrigeration to insure the safe keeping of perishable foods. All of these are thrifty practices. The possibilities of ECONOMIES which are EFFICIENCIES are almost endless.

Practical economy results in the saving of money. And saving money is one of the fundamental needs for a well rounded life. Save a little, no matter HOW little; begin as young as possible and stick to it.

Guard your savings. Invest them only where they will be safe and secure. Make no investment until you have consulted your banker. He will gladly help you and give you advice. Remember the PROPER INVESTMENT OF MONEY is fully as important as economy.

Save for eventual financial independence, PLAN your savings and then work your PLAN. The first step toward financial independence is a Savings Account. The Savings Bank was instituted for the small saver. It has stood the test of time; it is safe and it is convenient.

The investment next in line to savings should be a life insurance policy. For life insurance provides both investment and protection. Among the advantages of life insurance are these: It eliminates worry and increases initiative; it is absolutely safe; it encourages saving; it is a great assistance in business, investment and home buying.

There are many other forms of investment such as real estate, bonds, stocks, mortgages, etc. Before making such an investment, consult your banker. Your bank has facilities to assist and aid you toward financial independence.

Bear in mind that every time you deposit a dollar in the bank or invest it in some LEGITIMATE and USEFUL ENTERPRISE, you assist some one to GET and KEEP a USEFUL JOB. EVERY DOLLAR YOU BANK OR INVEST PROVIDES WORK FOR SOMEBODY.

Four Stages of Financial Accomplishment

1. All success begins with Savings. A growing savings account is essential to each succeeding step.
2. Investment—the ability to capitalize upon thrift that has gone before.
3. The establishment of a Home and a Business through the fruits of Savings and Investments.
4. Finally providing for Heirs through Bank or Trust Company to insure their profiting by the co-ordinated endeavor of a life time.

Plan for Prosperity

1. Have Thrift Ideals.
2. Aim to Retire with an Income at 60 or 65.
3. Aim to Own your Own Home.
4. Aim to Give your Children an Education.
5. Aim to Create an Estate.

"It's not your fault, old man," I said after a moment's silence, trying dismally to be cheerful. "The land looked good. We followed it because we hoped it would make you rich. We failed, and that's that."

Betty stared wildly from one to the other of us.

"You all make me tired," she exclaimed. "Why should we give up hope? How long have we looked so far? What—Oh, let me by! I must think!"

She brushed by me into the fake passage, and the echo of her footfalls reached us as she ascended to the garden.

"We might as well follow her," said Hugh. "I'm awfully sorry, you clams. You risked your lives for this rotten show. My poor deluded ancestor! I expect most of these buried treasure stories are bunk, anyway. In fact, I have a dim recollection of telling poor Uncle James as much. And there's another thing to make the gods laugh! A fine old cock like Uncle James devoting his whole life to following a will-o-the-wisp—and then losing it for nothing. It—it's—oh, it—I, I suppose it's really funny!"

We climbed wearily up the thirty steps to the garden level. As I reached the surface the first object my eyes encountered was Betty, sitting on the red stone and poring over a sheet of paper.

"Hello!" she called, looking up with all her accustomed vivacity. "Do you recognize this paper, Hugh?"

She fluttered it at him.

"Looks like my handwriting," he admitted.

"It's the copy of the instructions you sent me, which I reminded to myself, I remember it. I remembered it this morning when we were in Peru and called for it at the post office while you were packing the bags at the hotel. I thought we ought to read it."

"What good can it do?" asked Hugh neutrally.

"There's an important point in it, which nobody has appreciated up to this time. It becomes doubly important in view of what we have just seen."

"The old portion!" exclaimed Nikka.

"Exactly! Look!"

And she spread the paper before us. Hugh had faithfully copied his uncle's translation of the old Latin, setting down also the several lines of dots by which Loris Chesby had indicated the words which had been sunken out by moisture and handling at some past time. They appeared, you will recall, at the conclusion of the explicit directions:

"Underfoot is a red stone as all square. Raise the—"

And then nothing distinguishable until the concluding line of farewell.

"Well?" demanded Betty triumphantly as we all studied the cryptic dots.

Hugh shook his head.

Betty, you were a brick to remember it," he said, "but honestly, what use is it? Whatever words are missing are unimportant. They must have been or somebody would have rewritten them."

"That does not necessarily follow," spoke up Vernon King, "old documents, especially those inscribed on parchment, are tricky records. It frequently happens that some isolated portion will be spoiled, while the other parts of the same sheet may retain their integrity. Moreover, we should not lose sight of the possibility that the person who last concealed the parchment, the Lady Jane Chesby of whom you have spoken, seems not to have been inclined to attach much importance to it. She would have been the last one to attempt to make good its deficiencies."

"But where could the treasure be that we have not looked?" demanded Hugh. "The directions are explicit. We followed them faithfully. So far as they exist we have verified their accuracy. But we have uncovered no place which could have served as a treasure chamber."

"Yes, Hugh, the directions are explicit," rejoined Betty. "And as you say, as far as we have then they have proved correct. They left us in the passage under the red stone which ends at the drain. And why was that passage built? Why, to get into the drain!"

"And the treasure was in the drain?" protested Hugh. "That's absurd, bet."

"It would have been washed away long ago," I scoffed. "That place is full of water at very high tides."

"I didn't say it was heaped on the drain and left there," rejoined Betty. "Where would it be?" asked Nikka.

"That's what we have to find out."

"What about the grating in the floor of the dungeon?" I cut in. "If they wanted to get into the drain—"

"But no man who had hidden a treasure in the drain would have relied on a drainage grating in a dungeon for means of access to it," answered Betty.

"That dungeon was a place for getting rid of special prisoners," interrupted King. "When the drain was actively in use, the water must often have backed up into the dungeon. I agree with Elizabeth that an emperor hiding a vast treasure would not have utilized the grating for access to it."

Nikka closed the argument.

"I am on Betty's side in this," he said. "At the least, she has given us something definite to work on. Now, if you will take my advice, Hugh, you and Professor King, with Betty and Jack to help you, will be the treasure-hunting squad. I had best remain here to act as expeditionary liaison officer with Wassio Mikail and his people at need. And if you don't mind, I'll need Watkins as gallier."

Every one agreed to this plan, and the four of us immediately descended into the passage again. King made a careful study of the stone-work, with a view to which I assisted him, with a view to ascertaining beyond any doubt whether there was any sealed opening in its walls. Both of us considered this the logical first step, but Hugh and Betty, wearied of so unexciting a task and left us to explore the upper end of the drain.

We had been at this for rather more than an hour, without the faintest hint of success, when we were interrupted by a hail from Hugh.

"Professor! Jack! Come here!"

"Oh, dad," called Betty, "here's a today inscription on the wall."

We dropped into the water, and waded inland for some twenty odd paces to where they were standing, with their torches bearing on a patch of marble set into the rough floor of the right-hand wall. Hugh was working with his knife-point, scraping away the moss and fungi that partially obscured the letters.

"I saw it by accident," bubbled Betty. "We went up a long way to where the roof gets much lower, and we heard water rushing ahead of us, so Hugh said we ought to turn back. My light just happened to catch on this piece of stone here as we passed it. There was one row of letters quite clear, but the others were all overgrown with this slimy stuff. What does it say, dad?"

"It's Greek, right enough," added Hugh, still scraping industriously. "I can make out a word here and there, but it doesn't seem to be the same language I learned at school. Just a moment, sir, and I'll have the whole inscription cleared."

I peered over their shoulders at the deeply-carved lines of angular characters.

"The stone was about three or four feet square, and below it was another similar one. Above the lettering was an elaborately scrolled cross. From it my eyes sought my uncle's face, and were held at once by the astonishment I saw mirrored there.

"Most amazing!" he muttered to himself.

"What is it, dad?" clamored Betty.

"But it can't be," he said, shaking his head. "Quite extraordinary! Dear me, I never saw this formula before."

"For Pat's sake, tell us!" I implored.

"It says nothing about the treasure," he answered sulkily.

"My surprise was called forth by the unusual form of expression. These inscriptions always follow a certain set phraseology, but this one is strikingly different."

"By gum," groaned Betty indolently. "Isn't this the limit?"

"Tend it anyway," I urged.

Hugh was beyond words.

"It says," began King, "and mind you, I am translating roughly—in the year after Christ 1185 and of the Emperor 2. Andronicus, the Scepter Wielder, Christ-loving Emperor of the Romans, built this drain new from the tile level."

He broke off.

"So far it is no different from thousands of other inscriptions we might find on the city walls, aqueducts, churches, or other public works. But now comes the part I cannot understand: 'If there were tongues, many might praise him.'"

"What does it matter?" said Hugh dispiritedly. "We're not interested in whether or not the subjects of the Emperor Andronicus were anxious to praise him. I could curse him for putting a cock-and-bull story on my foolish ancestor."

"If there were tongues many might praise him," repeated Betty, again.

"And it was the Emperor Andronicus!" The same, daddy? The one the instructions speak about?"

"Manifestly, my dear, the date certifies to that."

"Then there must be something in it," she insisted. "If there were tongues many might praise him. Don't you see what it means? There were no tongues to praise him. This work was not known at the time. Why? And why was he able to keep it a secret?"

"He may have murdered all the workmen," replied her father slowly. "He was a singularly bloody tyrant, according to the contemporary historians."

"Exactly," triumphed Betty. "And why would he have murdered them, in order to keep this work a secret? You see, he built the drain new from the tile level, probably to this point. That means there was a drain, but it needed repair, and he seized the opportunity to hide his treasure. Hugh, where are those tools? I'm going to get this stone out of the wall."

It was as hard a job as we tackled, despite the softening of the mortar by the moisture of the ages; but after two hours, Hugh and Vernon King were able to pry the slab loose and it fell out with a mighty splash. Hugh thrust in the end of the crowbar, and it struck brickwork. Our torches showed this to be very busy, and when it was pounded it rang hollow. The three of us who had two arms apiece went at it with a will, and I was dispatched for reinforcements.

Nikka refused to come himself, but he sent Wally, and the valet helped in the final act of demolition. By the end of the afternoon we had smashed through an embrasure nearly three feet high and four feet long, and Hugh indicated Betty for the honor of leading the way into the dim passage, which admitted on the side. The rest of us crowded in afterward. My uncle and Watkins boosted me up, for my bad shoulder hindered me.

The passage was seven feet high and four feet wide. It led straight back between brick walls into a large chamber the roof of which was upheld by brick piers. The place was musty, cold even, and very damp, but as our torches struggled through the darkness the rays were captured and logged by glistening, shaggy heaps that were stacked against the piers and walls. Betty started forward involuntarily. There was a shuffling sound, and then a tiny tinkling that died away in a faint murmurous sssst.

"It's gold!" she cried.

We rushed our torches right and left. It was true. Great golden piles sloped away from us. The fragments of the bags that once had held this wealth projected from the multitude of coins. At the end of the chamber the piles mounted to the roof. There were stray rivulets of gold that trickled almost to the mouth of the passage. To the left stood several tiers of ancient chests. The first yielded at once to the point of Hugh's knife. The cotton wad cut like cardboard. When he flung the lid back it fell apart, but we scarcely noticed it for the dazzling, glimmer of the gems that seemed almost to light to escape from their centuries-long imprisonment.

Jewels and jewelry and massive plate were heaped in indiscriminate confusion, huge saucers, cups, chalices, amphorae, bracelets, armlets, amulets, brooches, necklaces, rings beyond number—and running in and out of the set stones, the endless profusion of innumerable gems, diamonds, amethysts, rubies, opals, pearls, sapphires, topazes, garnets, turquoises, emeralds, and others I could not name.

I picked up what had been a king's crown, a barbaric headpiece of crime unpolished gold, red and soft, set with enormous uncut stones. Next to it was a chased bracelet that might have come from the goldsmiths' shops at Athens in the classic age. The quantity of precious things was almost inconceivable. And this was but one of a score of chests.

King stooped and scooped up a handful of gold pieces from the floor, brand, thickly minted, bearing the double-headed eagle of Byzantium and the busts and figures of dead-and-gone emperors.

"Was there ever such a find?" he muttered. "What a chance for the numismatist! See! Here is a byzantine of Arminius the Usurper. I never saw one before. It was not known that he had coined money. And here is the likeness of Arcadius, first of the Eastern emperors."

Betty threw her arms around Hugh, as aimlessly, for the moment, as Karo.

"Oh, I'm so glad!" she murmured. "It's as much as you thought it would be, isn't it?"

Hugh was dazed.

"As much? By Jove, sweetheart, I—I never dreamed of anything like this! I—really, you know, I didn't honestly believe in it before. I used to pretend to make myself carry on, I told myself it was up to me to see the thing through on Uncle James' account. But—this! I say, professor, how much do you suppose there is here?"

Vernon King swept his torch in an arc around the chamber, the extreme confines of which were shrouded in shadow.

"I am no fiscal expert, my dear boy. It would take a committee of jewelers to assess those chests alone. As for the gold, I have seen the treasury vaults in Washington, and gold mounts up fast when you run into the thousands of pounds of gold. Just as a wild guess, I might hazard a million of $100,000,000, $200,000,000 at normal exchange."

"But it can't be!" I protested, the sweat beading my forehead at the thought. "Why, it's ridiculous. They didn't have wealth on such a scale in those days."

"Not at all, Jack," returned my uncle, his scholar's pride aroused. "You must remember that you are revealing here the hoard accumulated by a Roman emperor, one of the last rulers before the definite initiation of the empire's final collapse. It was then still by far the richest country of which we have any record. According to Herodian of Tadmor, the Jewish traveler of the Twelfth century, the revenue received by the emperor from the city of Constantinople by itself amounted to 7,300,000 nomismata, or in the neighborhood of $20,000,000."

Herodian and other later authorities, Andronicus, Pappus, and others, assert the revenue derived from the remainder of the empire to have represented five times this sum. At the most moderate computation, the total revenue of the empire must have exceeded $120,000,000. It was probably very much more. In addition, the wealth of the individual citizens and nobles was enormous. The Emperor Andronicus, with whose efforts we have to deal here, had two years to milk the country's wealth. During those two years, he not only absorbed the taxes, but confiscated the wealth of more nobles than any ruler prior to that period.

"I should not be greatly surprised if the contents of this chamber was discovered to exceed $125,000,000. Andronicus was possessed with a mania for accumulating a treasure for rebuilding the empire. If he—"

"If you aren't very lucky, Hugh, you are going to lose all this stuff just because you were lucky enough to find it," said Nikka's voice behind us.

We turned to confront him. Karo's dark, passionate face was at his shoulder. Her eyes drank in the picture, and she stood on her tiptoes to whisper in Nikka's ear.

"No, thank you, my dear," he answered dryly. "She suggests that I give her my knife, and that between us we clean up you people. Oddly enough, she is not alone in possessing that idea. Who do you suppose is up stairs?"

"Mrs. Willyer," I exclaimed.

"Right. But she's not alone. She came back with Mahkoul Pasha. I've got them both safe under lock and key, with Wassio Mikail's knife at their throats. Still—"

He shrugged his shoulders.

"Out of the frying-pan into the fire, your nephew," remarked Watkins glumly. "Sure I was, this was too good to last."

CHAPTER XIV

Antiques, Statuary, Chgs. Pd. With Caro

Reluctantly and with many a backward look, we retired from that glimmering vault of wealth, and climbed to the atrium. We were all soaked to the waist and suddenly conscious of the fatigue of the last two crowded days. Personally, I felt that I had reached the limit. I didn't care what happened. I thought that we were in a hopeless fix. Vernon King was equally morose. Betty was really to weep. Nikka was sardonically amused at our ill-luck. Karo was indifferent, so long as Nikka refused to embark upon a scheme of wholesale murder in order to impound the treasure for themselves alone. Wally was literally hopeless. Only Hugh squared his jaw and said nothing.

"I'll have the precious pile fetched in if you like," volunteered Nikka as we sat about the room. "But I don't see the use. I've talked to them, and I can assure you they aren't in a mood to be agreeable. Mrs. Willyer is consumed with revenge. She isn't thinking of anything else. She just wants to get back at us. Mahkoul is politely threatening. He figures that he has us on the hip because of his imperial majesty's subjects and all that. He talked about international complications, and lawlessness."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Printer Also Had a Proposition to Make

It seems that a printer somewhere down in Texas got slightly peeved at a letter from a doctor who wanted bids on several thousand letterheads and statements, different sizes, different grades of paper, and printed in various colors; with the request that the forms be kept awaiting for possible reprint orders.

So Mr. Printer diagnosed the case carefully and answered something in this manner:

"Am in the market for bids on one operation for appendicitis—one, two, and five-inch incision, with and without pores. If appendix is found to be sound, want quotations to include putting same back and cancelling order. If removed, successful bidder expected to hold incision open for about sixty days, as I expect to be in the market for an operation for gall stones at that time and want to save the cost of cutting."—Forbes Magazine.

Plane Fights Malaria

To combat the spread of malaria, Paris green dust sprayed from underneath the carriage of a plane, which is able to cover thousands of acres of swamp land in a day, is proving to be the death of mosquito larvae.

The first experiment was conducted by a marine corps airplane in Haiti. According to a report of Samuel W. Honaker, consul at Port-au-Prince, the first trial was entirely satisfactory and areas, which were out of hewen, are now cleaned up.

TREE-RING CALENDAR

View of Pueblo Bonito, New Mexico.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)
IN THE isolated Indian pueblos of New Mexico and Arizona during the past six years scientists have been gathering data that have been made it possible for them to write one of the most fascinating detective stories of science that has been unfolded since scholars deciphered the famous Rosetta Stone of Egypt. The work, carried on by Nell M. Judd and Dr. Andrew E. Douglass under the auspices of the National Geographic Society, has involved the collection of thousands of samples of wood of living trees and of beams from ruined Indian villages so that the tree rings—"the fingerprints of time"—could be studied and compared. As a result of this work a unique tree-ring calendar has been constructed which extends known dates in the New World back to a time more than eight centuries before the arrival of the Spaniards in what is now southwestern United States.

By translating the story told by the tree rings laid down during the past twelve and a quarter centuries the scientists have established a chronology for that period more accurate than if human hands had written down the major events as they occurred.

It is now possible definitely to announce the important dates in the history of Pueblo Bonito, oldest and largest of the great Indian communities, in Chaco Canyon, New Mexico, excavated and partially reconstructed by the National Geographic Society.

Furthermore, it is possible now to date nearly forty prehistoric ruins in the Southwest and reconstruct there a succession of major events through which Indian settlements rose, passed their heyday, and disappeared.

Just as the far-famed Rosetta Stone provided the key to the written mysteries of ancient Egypt, so the collection of an unbroken series of tree rings has made clear the chronology of the Southwest.

Through this work we have learned of some outstanding events in America which were contemporaneous with the conquest of Spain by the Moors, and we know that certain Pueblo Indian settlements were enjoying their golden ages when William the Conqueror faced Harold the Saxon at the Battle of Hastings.

These researches have carried the calendar back to A. D. 700 in the Southwest, and they have provided the beginnings of a continuous weather chart for 1,200 years.

Tree Rings Tell Much.

Many a prehistoric jewel has been given to the flames unwittingly because no one knew the importance of tree rings in recording the passage of years. Where fuel was scarce, fragments of precious timbers at many an ancient ruin in the American Southwest have been used as firewood by the sheep-herder, prospector, and even archaeologist. They were scraps of wood, nothing more. The Bible story of the stone which the builders rejected, but which became the head stone of the corner, has found a counterpart in the wood that the modern searcher overlooked, for it has become a key to prehistoric chronology.

Through long past ages and with unbroken regularity, trees have laid down a record at the close of each falling year—a memorandum as to how they passed the time; whether enriched by added rainfall or injured by lightning and fire. By learning how to read these records—specifically those of the places—we have discovered a magic key to open mysterious books and interpret the meaning of their writings.

In favorable regions, rings in trees may be identified, each one in its appropriate year, and traced back till we get to the utmost reach of living trees, and then beams from ancient ruins and buried logs carry the story back for many more centuries.

Thus these tree records have provided us with an American calendar reaching beyond the rise of Charles Martel or the Mohammedan invasion of India. Some of these trees were cut a thousand years ago. From them we have learned the exact building dates of major ruins of the southwestern United States as definitely as we have been able to fix the dates of Old World monuments of the ancients whose records are inscribed on stone.

Seen from one angle, the assembling of these tree-ring samples pushes back the bounds of history in our Southwest and gives us human activities—even tragedies—among the native inhabitants for hundreds of years. From another angle this history in trees tells us the climate story of the Southwest with amazing accuracy.

When a real theory of climate has been developed and we can predict drought and flood over a period of years, this Arizona story in tree rings will have played a creditable part in developing that climatic foresight which is perhaps the most valuable economic advantage yet lying beyond our reach.

Reading the Records.
The method used in extending the historical calendar of the Southwest is the outcome of a long attempt to read the diaries of trees. Every year the trees in our forests show the swing of time's pendulum and put down a mark. They are chronographs, recording clocks, by which the succeeding seasons are set down through definite imprints. Every year each pine adds a layer of new wood over its entire living surface of trunk and branches.

If every year were exactly the same, growth rings would tell the age of the tree and little more. Only in rare cases would they record exceptional events of any interest to us. But a tree is not a mechanical robot; it is a living thing, and its food supply and adventures through life all enter into its diary. A flash of lightning, a forest fire, insect pests or a falling neighbor may make strong impressions on its life and go into its diary.

But in the arid regions of our Southwest, where trees are few and other vegetation scarce, the most important thing to man and trees is rainfall. So, in the rings of the talkative pines we find lean years and fat years recorded. The same succession of drought and plenty appears throughout the forest. This fact helped vastly in the dating work, for certain sequences of years become easily recognized from tree to tree, county to county, even from state to state.

The development of this tree-ring study presents an example of how a scientific research starting with a definite idea may lead into unforeseen channels. Originally Doctor Douglass' work was a study of sun spots. It is known that there is a periodicity in their occurrence; they are most numerous at intervals of eleven years. As an aid in that astronomical investigation, he studied trees, for solar changes affect our weather, and weather in turn affects the trees in Arizona's dry climate, as elsewhere.

Sun Spots and Tree Rings.

The study of sun spots and their influence upon weather and the consequent effect upon vegetation as recorded by tree rings progressed most successfully. The first confirmation of the general interpretation of a relationship between tree rings and sun-spot periods came in a dramatic way.

Evidence of the eleven-year sun-spot cycle had been easily found in Arizona pine trees. The regularly recurring periods had been recorded for 500 years by tree rings, except for the interval from 1650-1725. During that 75 years the tree rings gave no evidence of periodical changes in the weather such as were to be expected.

Several years after this puzzling fact had been encountered, the late Dr. E. Walter Maunder, an eminent English astronomer, unaware of the findings, wrote to Doctor Douglass that he had discovered that there were no sun spots between 1645 and 1715, and that if the tree rings did not indicate some effect of this absence of sun spots, the work was being conducted on an erroneous hypothesis.

The coincidence between the failure of Arizona trees to register any sun-spot effect upon the weather during those years, and establishment of the fact, by entirely independent study, that the customary sun-spot cycle did not occur during approximately the same period of years helped confirm the relationship between the growth of trees and solar changes.

Specifically, the tree-ring calendar, as finally worked out, told these things about Pueblo Bonito, the ruin whose date problem brought about the six years' search: Its earliest recovered beam was cut in A. D. 910 from a tree that was 210 years old when cut; and that was 210 years old when cut in 1127. Not only has the age of this great one time metropolis of the Southwest been fixed, but the tree-ring calendar has also dated some 40 other ruins whose time of occupancy hitherto had been unknown. Important among these is the Mesa Verde group of Colorado, in which Cliff Palace is dated 1073; Oak Tree House, 1112; Spring House, 1115; Balcony House, 1190-1200; Square Tower House, 1204; and Spruce Tree House, 1216 and 1262.

"I Could Never Get Along without 'Kitchen-Tested' Flour"

Mrs. Roy Smith Declares This New-Type Flour Banishes Baking Failures and Worry

"I could never get along without GOLD MEDAL 'Kitchen-tested' Flour," says Mrs. Smith. "When I use this new-type flour there's nothing to worry about, no matter what I make. I am sure that one who uses it need never worry about losing her husband if the old saying is true that, 'The way to a man's heart is through his stomach.'"

Baking Failures and Worry Are Now Banished Forever

NOW when women bake they are always sure of perfect results—no watching, waiting and worrying until bread or pastry comes out of the oven.

They use a new-type flour for all baking purposes—GOLD MEDAL "Kitchen-tested" Flour—that simplifies baking remarkably and banishes the cause of most baking failures.

Failures, experts found, were mostly due to the fact that 2 sacks of the same flour often acted differently, even with the same recipe.

It was not uniform in oven action. So now all GOLD MEDAL Flour is "Kitchen-tested" before it comes to you. As each batch comes through the mill it is tested by actual baking—bread, cakes, biscuits, pastries—in an oven just like yours. Only flour which acts the same perfect way every time is allowed to go out to you. Thus you know

Evidently His First

In the jamboe at Pittsburgh traffic an excited chap suddenly jumped from his car, which he left blocking everything, and while startled pedestrians stopped to stare, ran up to a passing street car, and rapped frantically on a window. "A boy!" in the car turned his head. "A boy!" in the minute in the street yelled joyfully, trailing the car, indifferent to danger. "Eight pounds and fourteen ounces!"

The things that are really for these gravitate to, these.

ONE PRESCRIPTION MADE FAMILY DOCTOR FAMOUS

Seldom has any single act been of greater benefit to mankind than that of Dr. Caldwell in 1885, when he wrote the prescription which has carried his fame to the four corners of the earth.

Over and over, Dr. Caldwell wrote the prescription as he found men, women and children suffering from those common symptoms of constipation, such as coated tongue, bad breath, headaches, gas, nausea, biliousness, no energy, lack of appetite, and similar things.

Demand for this prescription grew so fast, because of the pleasant, quick way it relieved such symptoms of constipation, that by 1888 Dr. Caldwell was forced to have it put up ready for use.

Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is always ready at any drugstore.

Waltzing Mice Help in Work of Mine Rescues

The rescue squads of the mining districts are often compelled to enter mines where the air is likely to be charged with gas that would make it impossible for human life, but the presence of this gas is not apparent to the nose. In order to protect themselves it has been the custom for these men to carry a canary bird along with surgical supplies, foods, tools and oxygen apparatus, because the bird is quickly affected by even a small amount of gas and invariably warned the rescue workers of the fatal and invisible fumes.

In the future, however, Japanese waltzing mice will replace the little yellow songsters, because experiments have shown that the curiously behaving rodents from the Orient are much more sensitive to deadly gas than canaries are. In addition to this, the mice are harder and are not often fatally stricken by their experience, whereas the birds are usually sacrificed. They do not recover from the effect of the gas.

Weights Weighy Problem

Officials of the Melbourne royal show at Melbourne, Australia, recently were confronted with what they considered to be a difficult scientific problem. They noticed that when 24 pounds of milk were taken from a cow which had been previously weighed the bossy had lost only 18 pounds. The secretary of the Royal Agricultural society weighed himself carefully, then drank one pound of water. He was astonished to find that he had gained only 19 ounces in weight. The test was made before council stewards and Dr. H. McKenna, the surgeon to the Royal Agricultural society.

Too Shy to Wed.

Situated in the lovely fruit-growing district of the Cornish valley of the Tamar, Looe is said to be the shyest village in England. The young folk there are so nervous of one another that there has been but one marriage in the ancient parish church within the past five years. According to the rector, the young men think more about playing cricket than they do courting. A church warden is optimistic enough to believe that romance will return to the village in due course.

Lutherans Third in Size

The Lutheran church's estimated world membership is 81,000,000 souls. It is third in size to the Roman Catholic church (estimated worldwide membership, 331,500,000); Orthodox Eastern church, 144,000,000; among all Christian denominations.—Time, the News magazine.

Profit in Gardens

When farmers ignore the possibilities of a garden they are overlooking one of the most profitable factors in their field, the Farm Journal points out. An intensively cultivated garden of one acre will produce $1,500 worth of commodities in a year, while a good yield from an acre of corn is worth about $60.

Girlhood

The trying time in a young girl's life is reached when Nature leads her uncertain steps across the line which divides girlhood and womanhood.
